Unit description

PRJ5001 Project Management Profession introduces students to project management main concepts. Students will become familiar with the role of the project manager and to key project manager competencies. Students learn about the project management professional practice code in a business context with a focus on ethical conduct required by the profession. Students are introduced to organisational and environmental factors important for project management practitioners, develop skills to formulate a business case, and learn to create a project charter and stakeholders' register. Students also develop skills in evaluating successful and unsuccessful projects to identify the lessons to be learned from these. In addition, legislation concerning employment of staff, work, health and safety and corporate governance practices necessary for effective project management are introduced.

Unit Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, students will be able to:

- ULO1 Identify and describe ethical, social, cultural, environmental, and economic factors surrounding projects.
- ULO2 Examine project management processes and knowledge areas and explore the key aspects of the initiating process group and project integration management.
- ULO3 Competently communicate with specialist and non-specialist stakeholders.
- ULO4 Analyse a project situation to formulate a business case, project charter and stakeholder register.
- ULO5 Recognise the project manager role and key competencies, important for project success.
